When the Pews Are Silent: Heartbreaking Stats On Abortion & Churchgoers

When was the last time your pastor addressed the issue of abortion and the sanctity of human life from the pulpit?

A recent study from Family Research Council and the Cultural Research Center revealed something shocking and heartbreaking: "Nearly one-in-five churchgoers have paid for, encouraged or chosen to have an abortion themselves." One in five (19%) have participated somehow in purposefully ending the life of a vulnerable child.

The study of American churchgoers found that:

43% "characterized themselves as 'pro-life' on the issue of abortion" (a huge decrease from 63% just three years ago!)

35% "considered themselves 'pro-choice'"

8% "lean toward pro-choice but could be convinced otherwise"

7% "lean toward pro-life but could be convinced otherwise"

Doctor's 5 words explained my weight gain: You might have fatty liver.

In other words, a large percentage of churchgoers do not have a biblical worldview when it comes to the sanctity of human life. Rather, these churchgoers have simply adopted the culture's view (from the secular, thus anti-Christian, worldview) that children are a choice and

Part of this problem is the silence of churches on this life-and-death issue. The study found:

12% said abortion is talked about "once every few years"

Only 41% of respondents "estimated that their church preached or taught about abortion in the weekend worship services several times a year"

23% "said their church never teaches about abortion"

13% "said such instruction was provided once a year"

So less than half of churches are actually teaching on abortion throughout the year. No wonder so many Christians are confused on the issue or simply have no idea what the Bible teaches about it (and that the Bible is very clear on it!). But this isn't some minor side issue. The lives of children made in the image of God are quite literally at stake, and the church is called by God to be salt and light in this culture. How can the church shine light on this issue and work together to end this barbarous practice if Christians themselves don't know what to think?

If you're a pastor, I implore you to teach on this issue from the pulpit. Sanctity of Human Life Sunday is coming up soon (January 25, 2026) and provides a great opportunity to do so, but don't limit it to just once a year--this vital teaching must be included throughout the year, woven into sermons as you faithfully preach through the Word of God and instruct your flock in a biblical worldview.

If you're a parent, are you talking about this issue with your children? Are you raising them with a biblical worldview when it comes to the sanctity of human life? Ultimately, it's your job to instruct your children in God's truth. Are you taking that seriously? Or are you just
